FOR SEPTEMBER PUBLICATION

The Three Furlongers

By SHEILA KAYE-SMITH

Frontispiece. $1.25 net. Postage extra.

This heroic tale is as human and appealing as "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." Janet is a noble woman of the open country, keeping her two wild-natured brothers straight by her love for them and making her great self-sacrifice for a man unable to appreciate her. Janet is own sister to the finest heroines of Thomas Hardy. Freedom is in every breath she draws, but fate subdues her, as it does her brother Nigel, and turns each of them finally to greater aims than they had dreamed of. Unquestionably a book of real power.

The Duke of Oblivion

By JOHN REED SCOTT

Frontispiece in color. $1.25 net. Postage extra.

"The unconventional in fiction" is what Mr. Scott stands for to-day to all who read for the enjoyment and thrill of the tale. His new adventure romance will stir the most jaded reader. A yachting party cruising in the Caribbean discover a mysterious island which by an unusual trick of nature has remained hidden behind a bank of fog. They find a lost community whose customs, to say the least, are most unusual. Adventure follows adventure, thrill after thrill, fighting and heroic deeds sufficient to win the hearts of more obdurate maids than the lovely girls of this romance.

Wild Mustard

By WILLIAM JASPER NICHOLLS

12mo. Decorated cloth. $1.25 net. Postage extra.

A splendid anti-suffrage story, glittering with wit, bubbling over with humor, but withal an undercurrent of such clever satire that we of the unsatiric twentieth century rub our eyes. Wild mustard, the weed, has a bite individual and effective, and these are the qualities of this striking novel. The disillusionment of the enthusiastic Anne gives us poignant medicine in a delicious medium. Desirous of "accomplishing something," she starts to lead the women hikers from Chester to Harrisburg; a more perfect fiasco you cannot well imagine. Anne is brought to her feet and realizes that a woman's place is—well, not at the head of a suffrage parade. This novel will indeed stir up the rival camps.

Betty's Virginia Christmas

By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL

Four illustrations in color by Henry J. Soulen. Decorations by E. S. Holloway. 12mo. Cloth, decorated in green and gold. $1.50 net. Postage extra.

Miss Seawell has never drawn a more captivating picture of the fine aristocrat of ante-bellum days, his tender-hearted, madcap granddaughter, and the complications that beset her friendship for the newcomer in the old domain. Betty wins the reader on the first page and holds him to the last, while the story has the true Christmas spirit of dancing and merry-making, song and sport, that should go with any tale of the holiday time.

The Ward of Tecumseh

By Crittenden Marriott

Illustrated in color and black and white by Frank McKernan.

$1.25 net. Postage extra.

An intensely exciting novel of the American Wilderness in the days after the Revolution. The ward of Tecumseh is a charming French girl brought up in the camp of the Shawnee Chief and loved by the young warrior, Wilwiloway. The heroine unexpectedly inherits large estates in France and in consequence is wooed by an unwelcome English cousin. Jack Telfair, an old friend, is warned of the girl's plight. She disappears, but Jack goes on the trail, and adventures come thick and fast until the final rescue. One reads the story with the same eagerness that the hero feels in his attempt to solve the mystery of the lost girl.

PAYING FOR NEWNESS.

OF COURSE, in the nature of things, there is no reason why a novel should be worth more one month after publication than six months. In the passing of years, it is true, styles in fiction, as in fashion, change, and what one generation reads avidly a later deems banal. So there are some novels whose appeal—based on some such current, quick-passing event as a war, a popular fad, a political campaign—is so transitory that their newness is an obvious factor in their value.

But it is a fact, as a writer in a recent issue of the English Author points out, that the very newness of novels in itself, however much without excuse or reason, makes them clamored for. It is futile to attempt explanation of the popular psychology which discards the excellent novel of last year for the mediocre one of the minute simply because it is the one of the minute. We may as economists deplore the economic waste the substitution involves, but as publishers and authors our feelings are necessarily divided.

It is interesting to speculate on what the effect upon the reading world would be if we took a vacation from all making of new books—of course we are speaking only of fiction, books of a serious nature obviously requiring as frequent renovation as demand will permit—and we fell back for mental refreshment on the enormous mass of good reading which the years, since Gutenberg's day, have accumulated. But, however interesting speculation about the results of such an experiment may be, we may be sure that the reading public will never permit it to be more than a speculation.

For by the curious kink of psychology that we have noted, the public demand their fiction brand new and piping hot. The popular magazine selling for fifteen cents to-day has only waste paper value in three months. The public libraries realize a tidy sum by extra charges to patrons who want the latest books. Six months after publication the publisher marks off from 20 per cent. to 80 per cent. from the value of most of his "recent fiction." Only the favored exceptions have any continuing sale. Any novel which is selling well in its third year its publisher looks on as a small private gold mine.

To gratify its passion for newness the buying public pays, of course; it must pay. The publisher sets a retail price many times above the bare manufacturing cost, not because he wishes to "charge all the traffic will bear," but because the passion for newness makes his harvest time so short that he must completely recoup himself in a very short period or lose on his publication. Royalties, advertising, fixed manufacturing cost, office overhead, all these the buying public must pay him back in one month or two or three. What wonder that the publisher, with full knowledge that his latest "child" will probably be dead in a six-month, feels that $1.35 is little enough to ask for a copy of it. He realizes that a continuing sale at fifty cents is more profitable than a boom sale at $1.35; but he also realizes that a fifty cent price is no more a guarantee of longevity than a $1.35 one. Demand is not only a fickle jade: in the book business she is extremely fleet footed!

AN unverified rumor from Florence, Italy, dated September 1, states that the English, French, and Russian pavilions at the Leipzig Graphic Arts Exhibit have been burned, resulting in the complete destruction of the priceless bibliographic loan exhibits which they contained. The implication, of course, is that the fire occurred with the active or passive connivance of the German authorities. The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY does not credit the rumor any more than it thinks the implication warranted. It seems hard to condone the irreparable destruction of the artistic and architectural treasures of Louvain, but that destruction had a certain military justification. The burning of the Leipzig loan exhibits would be a wanton vandalism, a shocking disregard of the common decencies of civilized scholastic intercourse which the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY believes Germany would be one of the last countries to commit or permit. We sincerely trust the rumor is utterly unfounded.

The wealth of the United States exceeds that of Great Britain and her colonies, as it does that of France and Germany combined. Remarkable as this statement is, the tendency seems to be to increase its lead. The United States is said now to own no less than one-fourth of all the world's wealth and produces one-third of the world's manufactured products.

HOW THE WAR IS AFFECTING THE CANADIAN BOOK BUSINESS.

From the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY Canadian Correspondent.

TORONTO, September 2.—There is no use denying the fact that the European war is playing havoc with the Canadian book trade. On all hands the report is the same. Sales are almost at a standstill; fall books are being cancelled or postponed and the size of editions purchased from American publishers is being reduced. On the English side there is a record of temporary cancellations that means that very few, indeed, of the new fall books of English origin will reach this side.

However, notwithstanding this picture of decay, there are plenty of indications that the situation might be worse. In spite of gloomy forebodings, the trade has not lost all traces of optimism. There will be practically no books held back here that can possibly be placed on the market, and the number will be very little short of that of last year. Further, publishers do not intend to relax any efforts to sell their books. Travellers are already going out to their respective territories just the same as usual and early reports received from some of them indicate that there is still some buying power among the retailers.

The school book trade has given a substantial impetus to the early fall trade and has laid the foundation for future business. While the majority of the school book publishers report a slight reduction in the number of books sold, one of the biggest houses dealing in this line finds its sales ahead of last year. This circumstance is attributed to the fact that the stocks of the retail booksellers were allowed to become very short during the financial stress of the past twelve months and they found it absolutely necessary to replenish their shelves this fall. Be this as it may, the school book business has proved the sheet anchor of many a dealer.

Apart from school books, sales for the past month have been confined almost exclusively to books dealing directly or indirectly with the war. Of these there has been quite a noticeable sale and booksellers have fostered the demand by their window displays. Strange to say, volumes that a year ago proved stickers and were relegated to back shelves are now displacing the very best fiction of the season in popular favor. Indeed, fiction has fallen off sadly and repeat orders for spring titles have been noticeably scarce.

It is probable that only such books of English manufacture as were produced before the outbreak of the war will figure in the Canadian market this fall. This means that a good many of the volumes, of which Canadian editions were arranged, will not be published until next year. On the other hand, the Canadian editions of American-made books will all be published as originally arranged, though it is reported that in many cases the size of the editions has been reduced. One Canadian publisher who handles a good many American books estimates that the editions will be from one-half to one-quarter the usual size, which is about the extent of their possible sale.

There is a feeling that, despite the present falling off in book sales, books will figure quite as largely as ever in Christmas sales. The pronounced shortage in German-made fancy goods, which always figured prominently in the holiday trade, coupled with the monetary stringency, which will make expensive presents impossible, will tend to divert attention to books, always in good taste and comparatively low in price. This is the gospel that several of the publishers are preaching, and it is to be hoped with good effect. At any rate, they are going ahead just as if nothing untoward had happened, are publishing practically as large lists as usual and are employing all the customary means to dispose of their goods.

One of the most favorable signs of the times is that the number of revisions of orders for fall delivery is very small. Comparatively few booksellers have sent in requests that their orders might be cut down. This circumstance speaks for itself, and either indicates a good deal of confidence in trade circles or else proves that booksellers bought very closely in the first case. The latter assumption is, perhaps, the nearest the truth, as there is little doubt that in the spring orders were pared down to the lowest possible level.

COPYRIGHT PIRACY INVOLVING FOUR COUNTRIES.

A FOUR-CORNERED case of piracy, A. Samler-Brown v. Josef Künzli, in which four countries were involved, was considered by the English Author recently under the caption, "A Grave Flaw in International Copyright." It seems that in 1903 Mr. A. Samler-Brown, an Englishman, published in London a work with the title: "Madeira, Canary Islands, and Azores, Practical and Complete Guide for Tourists, Invalids, and Residents, with Twenty Colored Maps and Plans, and many Diagrams."

In the summer of 1907 Josef Künzli, of Aadorf, Thurgau, Switzerland, a representative of the firm of A. G. Künzli, of Zurich (illustrated postal-card publishers), at the instigation of Joseph Ratschüler (at the time manager of the Hotel Quisana, in Santa Cruz, Tenerife), reproduced, without the author's permission, 21,240 copies of maps in Mr. Samler-Brown's book, in the form of postal-cards. Of these cards, Ratschüler took 5,000. Josef Künzli had to dispose of the others how he could, and, on the occasion of a visit to Tenerife, handed them over to an agent, Richardson, for sale.

Supported by the British Society of Authors, Mr. Samler-Brown instituted proceedings against Josef Künzli on September 15, 1910, in the District Court of Zurich; and, as the verdict of that court was given against him, proceeded to the High Court of Appeal of the Canton. This court, on November 12, 1913, confirmed the sentence of the lower court, and acquitted the defendant Künzli on the ground that—

No offense had been committed of which the Swiss courts could take cognizance.

This was for the following reasons:

1. The cards were not produced in Switzerland, but by Emile Pinkau & Co., of Leipzig.
2. The cards were not distributed from Zurich, but were all delivered directly, through Hamburg, to Tenerife. (The publishing firm of A. G. Künzli had had nothing to do with the transaction, of which there was no record in their books.)
3. The plea that, although the cards were not of Swiss production, and had not been delivered from Switzerland, the correspondence respecting them issued from Zurich, was declared to be beside the question. Even if Künzli had written to Richardson from

Zurich to place the sale of the cards in Richardson's hands, this would not have been an actionable act performed in Swiss territory, because it was not an act of distribution, but a mere preliminary thereto. Nor could anything be gained by proving that a correspondence had been carried on from Zurich as in the case of offenses committed by means of correspondence; the place where the letter is received and read is regarded by Swiss law as the place where the offense is committed. The receipt of moneys in Zurich and the corresponding entries in commercial books kept there, were mere consequences of what had been done in Tenerife, but not in themselves infractions of copyright.

The legal technicalities of the case (into which we do not here enter, says the English Author) are somewhat complicated; but the result is very simple, and is this:

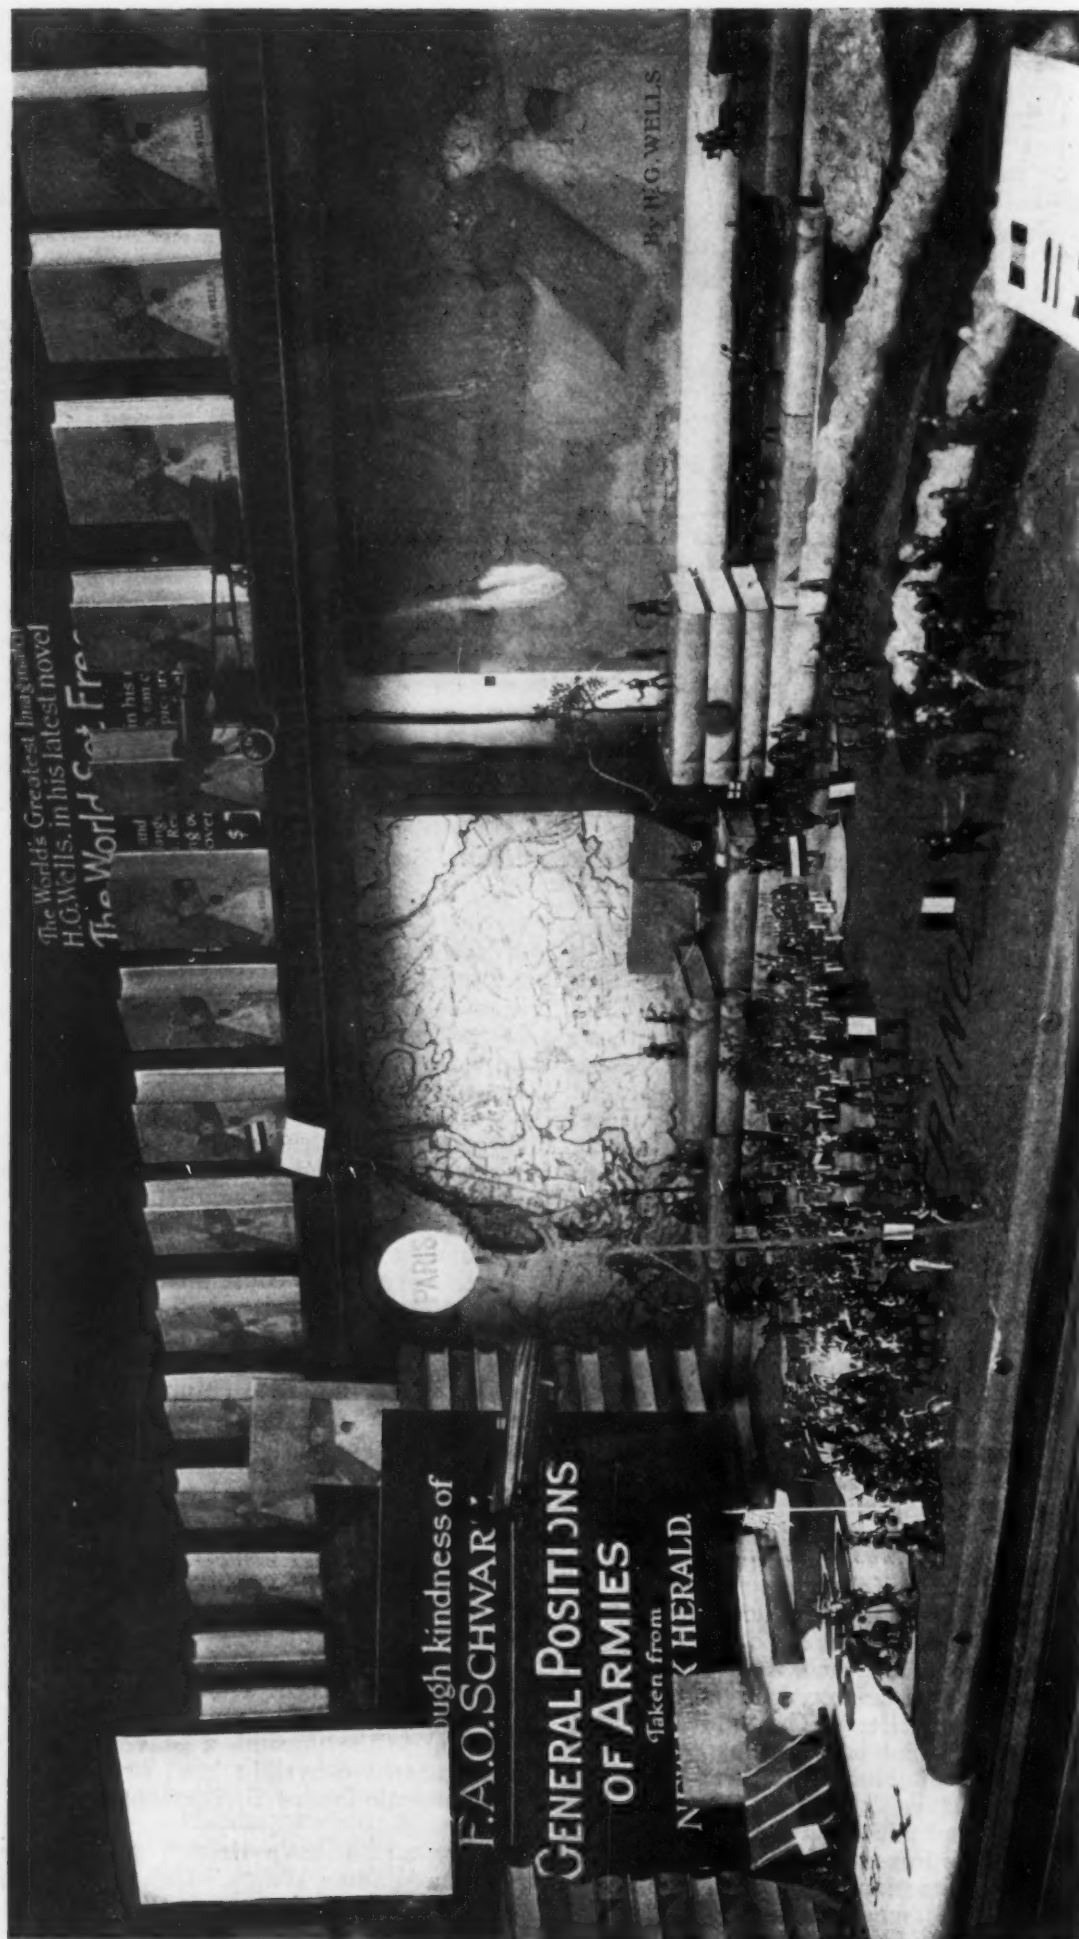

That Josef Künzli reproduced, without the author's consent, copyright matter, sold his reproductions, and secured the profits of these transactions, is not disputed. As, however, he is domiciled in one country, has reproduced in another, and sold in a third, he is acquitted of infringement of copyright, notwithstanding all the international law and agreements respecting copyright at present in existence.

That this should be possible appears to show that, up to the present, a grave flaw exists in international copyright law; or is the flaw in the domestic law of Switzerland?

A "WAR WINDOW," ADVERTISING H. G. WELLS' STRIKING FORECAST, "THE WORLD SET FREE," DISPLAYED BY E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY.

HOW THE DUTTON "WAR WINDOW" WAS MADE.

Mr. Burkhardt, of E. P. Dutton & Co., sends us the following description of the way the "war window" reproduced elsewhere in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY was made. To booksellers considering similar windows his directions may be suggestive:

"It first being necessary to get a ground to work on, an old pine table was brought into use and covered with different colors of writing paper. These all had to be drawn on a scale, carefully cut out with scissors and glued in position. Also it was necessary to paint all the borders so as to distinguish the boundaries of the countries. The mountains are composed of common garden putty. The lead soldiers were kindly loaned by F. A. O. Schwarz. On account of the position of the armies it is more practical to take Paris as the point of view looking toward Berlin, and about one foot on the map is 80 miles on the ground.

"The New York Herald daily publishes on their second reading page an excellent map about a foot square, showing the various positions of the armies, and by moving the soldiers daily and putting little flags with the names of the forts and the different organizations, it is quite easy to follow the war.

"The cover of the book, the original design of which is seen in the right hand side of the center, has a small aeroplane with a bomb being thrown out of it; this result was obtained by a toy with a small rubber ball hanging by a black thread; the rubber ball can be seen just at the right above the ambulance in the center of the picture. The little Zeppelin on the left is equipped with an electric light, which makes the entire picture more attractive at night than in the daytime. A wireless is represented by a couple of toothpicks and some black thread. This can be seen about one-half inch to the right of the word—'Paris' running horizontally across the page.

"The window has proved very successful. Judging from the crowds of people who stop to look at it, one never becomes too old to appreciate toys."

SOME VARIETIES OF BOOK REVIEWING.

The appearance of Professor Bliss Perry's article in the Yale Review on "Literary Criticism in America" initiated a little flurry of coincident comment on the subject, of which an editorial in the New York Evening Post, and a letter to which the editorial gave rise, are well worth quoting.

It notes the conclusion, put in 1905 by Henry James, that America "presents production uncontrolled, untouched by criticism, unguided, unlighted, uninstructed, on a scale that is really a new thing in the world." To this Professor Perry relates the fact that our literary advertisements, from that puffing Hall Caine's "masterpiece" as "a book which will take its place with the great classics in literature" to that of "the greatest magazine the world has ever seen," are not merely uncritical, but uncandid to the point of dishonesty. This relation is to him largely one of effect and cause. But the two conditions seem rather twin than child and parent. The reason why criticism is shallow is also the reason why literary advertising is disingenuous and exaggerated. It lies in the application of two rough forces—journalism and advertising—to a field which ideally should be reserved to select and informed minds. New books in a vast torrent require wide comment, and a publicity based on it. Those who emphasize the resultant evils fail to realize how apart criticism should be from the lower reaches of journalism and commerce. They ask why the newspapers cannot do for books what they do for news. Noting the way in which groceries and clothes are advertised, they cannot understand the want of like frankness and taste in advertising books.

There are various reasons why the ordinary daily paper will never produce elevated and trustworthy literary criticism. Too often it is allotted to the apprentice hand. Mr. Howells has expatiated with melancholy humor on the enthusiastic praises with which the young reviewer makes author and publisher alike tingle, and on the cruelties of which he is sometimes capable. Another disability of journalistic book-reviewing is its clannishness. Just as groups of men held together by a common bond of sympathy tend to exalt their own literary efforts, groups of critics cry up what appeals to their bias. Arnold remarked of Burns that, while Scotch drinking, religion, and manners often made a harsh, sordid and repulsive world, it was so familiar that the Scotch "had a tenderness for it"; so in a criticism sufficiently broadcast the publisher can always discover reviewers whose personal chord is touched. But it is only in the select jury that we are sure of the intellectual detachment which is the basis of sound verdicts. Furthermore, if we divide books roughly as instructive, amusing, charming, or elevating, it is the second and third classes—by far the largest—that are worst written about. Standards of what amuses must always vary widely among the popular tribe of critics. Books like Doyle's detective stories will always be spoken of by some in the same terms that others use of Dickens and Dumas. All things considered, it is clear that sound appraisal of books will for some time remain within a small circle of reviewing periodicals.

The difficulty lies in getting the publisher to recognize this fact and to encourage sincere criticism. He is not to be blamed for the scamped work with which many periodicals are content; but ought he to seek to push his business by means of it? Sooner or later, it will be admitted that the multiplication of contradictory and empty notices only puzzles and disgusts the public. Especial measures should be taken against the open puff—often a very boomerang. The present beating of tom-toms over any given book as if it were the greatest ever published only induces the reader to stand on his own judgment. Advertising currency should be given to sound criticism, whether wholly favorable or not. The verdicts need not be unanimous; and one of the greatest benefits publishers could reap from critical keenness and frankness would be the freshening effect of controversy. Many books might benefit from the differences of opinion they aroused.

The importance of the whole matter does not lie on the surface. Just as the goal of the honest reviewer is to form the reader and the future writer, not merely to guide them in one instance, so the publisher should perceive that the effect of a single good review may extend to the purchase of scores of volumes to come. We may well doubt that misleading advertising is the cause of a wide critical demoralization "in creating an atmosphere highly unfavorable to accuracy of judgment and honesty of record." But no one can doubt that advertising may help perpetuate bad criticism.

To this a Superior, Wis., correspondent of the Post's adds this postscript:

SIR: Just beyond the scope of your editorial on "Varieties of Book Reviewing," June 25, lies the fact of "disingenuous and exaggerated" book-notices coming direct from the publishers. Concerning difficulty in getting the publishers to encourage sincere criticism, you say: "He is not to be blamed for the scamped work [in book review] with which many periodicals are content; but ought he to seek to push his business by means of it?" You stop short of mention that in publishers' "advertisers" sent out in leaflets, pamphlets, or appended to magazines published by themselves, the "open puff" appears, not with quotation marks. "Uncandid to the point of dishonesty" these statements prove the publishers often are—a "shady" procedure, some of whose workings upon the public may be fairly illustrated by one instance. For a score of years, the writer, in buying very many American books, trusted one publishing house more than any other—a firm not then among those doing the largest business, but regarded with singular and even ardent respect by many people who took pains to get good publications. The firm's advertising was inconspicuous and wholly dignified; their efforts being, as was well recognized, largely engrossed with the attempt to do thoroughly honest, morally helpful publishing. The fact that they published a book was enough to make a market for it. Their business name and fame were growing, of course.

But suddenly a change of policy came—a great spread of advertising, with less care about the dignity. Their publications, increasing rapidly in number, continued good, but are not to-day as uniformly good as heretofore. Other firms, whose advertisements—as far as that goes—are less loud, command more confidence from those buyers who still look to publishers for guidance, or who carefully use their own judgment. That formerly best-trusted firm has become, in special sense, a best seller (of books); but has gone from bad to worse in praising its own output, until now I hardly think that it ever prints an unfavorable word about one of its publications, observing unbroken reticence with regard to faults so large and significant that reviewers seem unable to ignore them. Certain novels of which the publication was probably a mistake, and which might have dropped quickly into oblivion, are put, year after year, on their prominent lists, with extravagant praise. Noticeably, their recommendation of books for children sadly lacks discrimination, is heedless, silly as criticism, mischief-making, while their shelves of "juveniles" show a neglect of modern children that is amazing in publishers who talk—or advertise—as if this branch of their work were held second in importance to none.

It looks as if they now put a great proportion of their thought into advertising. Such a craze for sales fits them ill. How have they been carried away into the whirl of unbalanced, unmeasured "booming" of wares, to the detriment of legitimate professional obligations!

I don't believe that only an insignificant few are hoping to see a day of reaction, after which publishers' comments upon their own books will be worth something, and "advertisers" will not be opened with sadness and dropped soon into the waste-basket.

"WHY NOT FORM A READING CLUB?"

In a recent issue of St. Nicholas Hildegard Hawthorne gives some unpretentious but all the more suggestive hints on the formation of reading clubs. What she says was intended primarily for boys and girls but most of it is just as applicable to their elders.

Reading clubs are a standing opportunity to the bookseller, and Miss Hawthorne's article will furnish him with any amount of ammunition.

"Most of us," she says by way of introduction, "find more pleasure in doing things in groups than alone. It isn't that you can't canoe or sail, or sew, or walk, or cook, or read alone. But somehow these things are more enjoyable when done with other people of like tastes with yourself. The rivalry of mind or body, the fun of getting different points of view, the delight of being with those you like, the helpfulness of competition and discussion—these are a few of the reasons why we like clubs.

"It's a great pity not to acquire the love of big, fine books, books that can be lifelong companions, while you are young. If you don't get the habit then, in fact, you are very likely never going to get it, and an incalculable amount of real happiness will be lost to you. For of the many things that give happiness in this world, three of the most important are people, nature and books.

"In the first place I would not have the club too large. Eight or ten members ought to be enough, at any rate until you are in good running order, and four would not be too few. If the club is larger, there would be too many conflicting points of view; some of the girls would be pretty sure not to care much for the purposes of the club, and as likely as not it would turn out to be a talk club before many months, with the books quite out of the running.

"Don't (I think I'll begin with the don'ts) lay out too heavy a program to begin with, nor arrange for too many meetings. Once a week, or even once a fortnight, is quite often enough at first. Then, if the meetings prove very enjoyable, you could have more. Many a good thing is killed by too much enthusiasm at the start.

"After you've chosen your officers and got your club on a proper basis, call a meeting to discuss the writers you want to take up. Get opinions from each member. Decide whether you will begin with dead or living authors. Whether you are going to confine yourselves to fiction or take up other forms of literature. Whether you want to read poetry as well as prose. Get a vote on these subjects. Another matter worth talking over is the amount of time you are to give to the writer, or group of writers, you decide upon. You might prefer to study one author thoroughly, or to choose the best-known books of several belonging to the same period, or to read masterpieces as such, and with no relation one to the other. These things are a matter of preference, and should be decided accordingly. The main thing is to cultivate a fondness for good literature.

"Personally, I think the study of a group would prove the more enjoyable. Suppose you chose the preceding age in American literature. That would include men like Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne, Motley and Prescott, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Lowell, Longfellow and others. You could choose a book by each of these men, or an essay, or a poem, or a short story, as seemed best, voting on these. It might be interesting to add some biography of the time, or stories about the men chosen.

"Another interesting thing to do would be to take the women who wrote in the nineteenth century. That century saw a wonderful birth of genius in women, and you could easily make up a list of books that would give you material for a year. There was Jane Austen, at the very beginning of the century, followed by the famous Bronte sisters, Mrs. Gaskell, George Eliot. Later came Louisa Alcott, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Christina Rossetti, Charlotte M. Yonge. These are only a few, and think what a charming number of books you could choose from these alone. In many cases delightful Lives of these women have been written, and it would make your reading course much more complete to include several of these.

"If you preferred to begin with one writer, Robert Louis Stevenson will make an excellent first choice. His books are so various, so tense in interest, so fine, so gay and thrilling and amusing, that you would be sure to interest every member of your club. Then his letters from the south seas, the 'Vailima Letters,' are the biggest kind of a treat, and reveal so much of the astonishing life in Samoa; and there are his short stories and his poems. Several excellent books have been written about Stevenson, too. After you had read all there was to read by him and about him, you would have added a vast deal to your knowledge on a great many subjects, have met a number of interesting and enchanting people, real and imaginary, and have pretty thoroughly formed a habit of reading good literature.

"But reading should not be the only thing in your club. If I were you I should suggest a certain amount of reading aloud at your meetings, taking this turn about. The art of reading aloud beautifully is a charming one, and can be a boon to others all your life. Practice is the only thing that can give it to you. Practice and criticism, and I would have both in the club.

"After the reading I would talk the book over thoroughly. Say what you each like or don't like, how the characters strike you, how much the story itself interests you, how you are impressed by the author's style. And when you talk, don't say what you think is expected, or is the proper thing to say, but what you really do think and feel about the book and the writer.

"A certain amount of reading should be allotted before the next meeting of the club, so that the books will not take too long to finish, or the thread of the story be lost.

"Then, say once a month, or perhaps once every three months, just as you elect, you ought to write little articles on the books you have been reading. There is lots of fun in putting your ideas down, and lots more in reading them out before your club, and later in discussing the different points of view that have been put forth. These papers ought to be informal and entirely sincere. If you could find out something interesting relating to the book or the author you were reading, you could write about that, or you could confine yourself to the hero or the heroine or the climax of the story, or the period in which it was laid. In fact, you could make these little papers a very interesting and important part of your club work.

"If, after having given some book a fair chance, none of you find it worth while going on with, give it up. Don't exhaust yourself with a book simply because you think you ought to like it. After all, the purpose of your club is to have a good time, and if you don't have a good time, the club will certainly die. There are so many enchanting stories for you to read that there is no sense in wasting time with one that bores you, even though it may be something which delights a lot of other people. Perhaps you may yourself like it later on. But do give each book that fair chance, for some of the best, some you will like the most, are a bit slow in getting started. You have to work a little to get at them, but you'll be glad once you really become intimate with them. Books are like people: some of those you love best were often difficult to become acquainted with when first you met them. Often these wear best of all, and add most to the joy of your life.

"I think that once or twice a year it would be good to offer a prize on the best paper read before the club in the past six or twelve months. That would stimulate interest in the writing of the articles, and judgment in deciding upon them.

"Many girls think that because a book is spoken of as a great book, or because it is written by a famous man, it must necessarily be hard to read. But, after all, the best books are such because so many people have decided that they like them. You can have just as thorough an enjoyment out of a work of art as out of a sloppily written and shallow story, if only you'll give yourself the chance. In fact, you can have a great deal more. For appreciation of excellence grows with encouragement, and brings astonishing rewards.

"The really worth-while books tell the truth; the truth about human beings, the truth about place and time, the big truth that lies behind life. When this truth-telling is joined to beauty of expression and style, art and truth meet in the book. As soon as you discover the fascination of these two elements you will seek for them, and books that lack them will not interest you."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

THE LOWELL LECTURES for 1914 were published by the Open Court Co. on September 1.

S. S. McCLURE's "AUTOBIOGRAPHY" was published in book form on September 4 by the Frederick A. Stokes Co.

MISS CAROLINE LYONS, well-known to the manufacturing men of the New York trade, has resigned her position with the H. Wolff bindery.

MR. AND MRS. J. B. LIPPINCOTT have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Lippincott, to Mr. Nicholas Bidle, of Philadelphia.

CATTARO, said to have been hotly bombarded a few days ago by English and French warships, is one of the towns described in Alice Lee Moqué's "Delightful Dalmatia"—a new Funk & Wagnall's book.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL Co. are offering this fall five new novels at the popular price of fifty cents. Among them is "The Adventures of Kathlyn," a story written by Harold MacGrath from a recent highly successful motion-picture scenario.

WITH THE WAR cutting off our usual supply of German Christmas toys, there is apt to be an unusually heavy demand for American juvenile books, games and toys. McLoughlin Brothers are one of the American houses making special effort to meet this demand.

THE SECTION ON "Tennis" in Lothrop, Lee & Shepard's "The Book of Athletics" is of especial importance now that its author, Norris Williams, has become champion. Last week, through an oversight, Mr. Williams' name appeared in these columns as Norris Williamson.

THE GERMAN KAISER is at present the most tremendously interesting personality in Europe. What manner of man this second Bismarck is in his home life is told in a forthcoming Dodd, Mead publication, "Memoirs of the Kaiser's Court," by Miss A. Topham, for seven years governess to the Emperor's only daughter.

A YACHTING PARTY cruising in the Caribbean discovers a mysterious island which by an unusual trick of nature has remained hidden behind a bank of cloud. What's on the island?

Well, that is the story of "The Duke of Oblivion," a September novel of the J. B. Lippincott Co.

"FROM CONNAUGH TO CHICAGO" tells how America appeared to an Irishman—Mr. George A. Birmingham—upon his recent visit. Among the topics upon which he writes in his whimsical way are: the American husband, and the American wife; the color question; the difficult art of sleeping in sleeping cars; how the Irish-Americans seem to the Irish-Irishman. The book will be published soon by the George H. Doran Co.

A LIBEL ISSUE OF SOME INTEREST has been raised in a suit in the New York Supreme Court by William H. Daly, a lawyer, for $10,000 damages against Martindale's American Law Directory. Mr. Daly claims that the publication has injured his standing as a lawyer by falsely referring to him in the issues of 1913 and 1914 as being "engaged chiefly in other occupations."

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. need not tell us that Bambi is utterly different—we infer that from the fact that she marries a young man "not because he has proposed, but because he 'needs looking after.'" Although "Bambi" will not appear until September 26, we can guess that she made no mistake in her choice from the words of Ardelia's prayer at the end: "Well, thank de Lawd dere's some sho' nuf lovin' at las'."

M. JULES LEMAITRE, the celebrated author and playwright, died recently. He was for a considerable time dramatic critic on the Journal des Débats and a regular contributor to the Temps. Although noted chiefly for his criticisms, some of his plays are of a high order. "The Pardon," perhaps his best play, will appear in translation in "Three Modern Plays from the French," to be published early this month by the Holts.

"SYLVIA'S MARRIAGE," by Upton Sinclair, will be published on September 15 by The John C. Winston Company. In "Sylvia's Marriage," Mr. Sinclair tells the story of the married life of Sylvia Castleman, a socially-distinguished southern girl of rare charm, who, against her own inclination, for family reasons married the scion of a great New York family. The story involves a vivid picture of the class system that sacrificed Sylvia.

"WAR'S AFTERMATH," by David Starr Jordan and Harvey Ernest Jordan will be published this month by the Houghton Mifflin Co. The book is a short, authoritative study, based upon the economic history of the South and a vast area of vital statistics, showing the effect of the Civil War on the quality of manhood in the South. It is of especial interest now that all Europe is busily engaged in killing off her young men.

THE LITTLE COLONEL BOOKS have enjoyed a huge vogue with juvenile readers. The Page Company announce for publication in the early future a new revised edition of "The Little Colonel Doll Book," with some added improvements both in the pictures and format. A forthcoming volume in the Cosy Corner Series is "The Boys' Browning," a collection of "Hervé Riel," "The Pied Piper" and other poems by Robert Browning that appeal to boys.

SO POPULAR was G. H. Mair's little volume on "Modern English Literature from Chaucer to the Present," published in Henry Holt's "Home University Library," that he has prepared an enlargement. Realizing that the mass of readers care more for modern literary tendencies than they do for the writings of the "venerable Bede," Mr. Mair has left out much of the beginnings of our literature and makes up for the omission by including such moderns as Kipling and Shaw.

AMONG THE SEPTEMBER publications of the Crowell Company are: "Bulfinch's Mythology," complete in one volume with 32 illustrations; "Hints for Young Writers," by Orison Swett Marden, and "I Had a Friend," by the same author; "The Man Napoleon," by Wm. Henry Hudson; "Women of the Classics," by Mary C. Sturgeon, with 16 photo-gravures; "Stories from Browning," by Rumeys C. Turnbull; "Stories from Wagner," by J. Walker McSpadden.

AMONG THE MACMILLAN books bearing on the war which have not been mentioned in previous war lists in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY are: "The Governments of Europe," by Frederick A. Ogg; "Peeps at Belgium," by S. W. T. Ormond; "Statesman's Year Book. Statistical and Historical Annual of the States of the World, 1914"; "France," by C. Headlam, and "Germany," by A. W. Holland—both in the Making of Nations Series; "Effect of War on Property," by A. Latifi; "Principles of War," (vol. 1), by Major-General E. A. Altham; and the "Theory of International Trade" by C. F. Bastable.

THERE IS A BLOODY BORDER around the jacket of Dr. Graves' "The Secrets of the German War Office." Inside the jacket is the startling story of the author's twelve years as a successful spy in the Kaiser's service. He tells frankly and readably, from the inside, the operations of the German Spy System. Some of the chapters are: "The Grand Duke's Letter"; "The Intrigue at Monte Carlo"; "The Isolation of France"; "My Mission and Betrayal in England"; "The German War Machine"; "Arming for Peace or War." The manuscript was in the hands of the publishers—McBride, Nast—on June first and the sudden outbreak of the war in August caused them to rush it to press.

"ORIENTAL LIGHT ON THE BIBLE," published by the A. J. Holman Co., should prove of practical benefit to the Biblical student, especially to the Sunday School teacher. It contains over one hundred illustrations of Oriental scenes, manners and customs throwing light upon the Bible; each illustration is described by F. N. Peloubet. The special Teachers' Edition includes a new series of maps embodying the results of the most recent explorations. The Holman Co. has also issued a new series of Pictorial Text Bibles containing colored pictures from photographs and paintings illustrating the natural scenery, customs, dress and home life of the Holy Land. A second printing has been made of the Family Bible on India paper; this edition is less than one inch thick and contains everything usually found in the old-fashioned heavy-weight editions.

WITH THE LARGE COMMUTING POPULATIONS OF TO-DAY, there is a great need for cheap large type books that one can read on trains and carry in the pocket. Under the general title of "Oxford Garlands," Mr. Humphrey Milford, of the Oxford University Press, is issuing a new series of small anthologies. The volumes are printed in large type, on good paper, and are bound in cloth, and are designed to offer the public an alternative to the popular cheap novels, seven pence (fourteen cents) being the price charged for the Garlands. The first four—Religious Poems, Sonnets, Poems on Sport, and Love Poems—are being published this month, and other volumes, some twenty in all, including poems on children, the arts, travel, life, patriotism, animals, Echoes from the Classics, Vers de Société, Elegies and Epitaphs, and Songs for Music, will be published at regular intervals. The poems have been selected, and briefly annotated, by Mr. R. H. Leonard, who compiled "The Pageant of English Poetry," "A Book of Light Verse" and other Oxford anthologies.

THOUGH LITERARY GRUMBLES of various kinds are always plentiful enough, says a recent writer in the English Bookseller, they are not always as well justified as Mr. Filson Young's recent complaint of the unnecessary length and bulk of the average present-day biography. As he cogently points out, there are very few subjects of contemporary biography whose life-stories could not be quite adequately told within the limits of a single volume of handy size; and the conventional practice of spinning out such works to fill a couple of more or less bulky volumes is undesirable from various points of view, since it not only makes such works unduly expensive and too long for busy people to read, but causes them to be padded with trivial material which is rather a source of boredom or irritation than an assistance to the reader. The trouble is, of course, that so many biographies are written by admiring relatives or friends of the subject, whose expansiveness and undue elaboration of trifles is the direct result of injudicious hero worship. "A long life and a short biography!" would not be a bad toast with which to do honor to distinguished guests at future literary banquets.

DAVID MCKAY has re-issued the twenty-four titles of the "Frank Merriwell Series" in a popular fifty cent edition with half tone illustrations and jackets in two colors. "My Motor Log Book," one of the books in the McKay fall list, should be warmly greeted by the many motorists who like to keep track of dates, runs, time, distances, roads, cost of repairs, and the other details of their automobile runs. Among the other books to be published by this house in the fall are: Irwin L. Gordon's "Who Was Who from 5000 B. C. to Date," a burlesque on "Who's Who," with cartoons, by Sykes, of Bryan, Mrs. Pankhurst, Sherlock Holmes, Roosevelt, Shakespeare and Woodrow Wilson; T. W. Corbin's "Aircraft, Airships, Aeroplanes, Etc."; "The China Collector" (a guide to the porcelain of the English factories) and "The Furniture Collector" (English furniture of the 17th and 18th centuries); "Canning, Preserving and Pickling" by Marion H. Neil (Cookery Editor of the Ladies' Home Journal); Pierre Loti's "Siam" and "India"; "The American Boy's Workshop," containing contributed articles by authorities on such boylore as "Small Furbearers and How to Catch Them," "Things for Boys to Make"; and an attractive line of nursery books, including McKay's indestructible "First Animal Book for Children."

FOREIGN NOTES.

A PUBLISHER by the name of Petersen, in Bergen, Norway, announces the publication of a collection of love letters written by Heinrich Ibsen at the age of 27 and 28. Sigurd Ibsen, son of the great dramatist, has already protested against the publication of these letters. It will be interesting to watch the fate of the publication which must have undoubted value as a human document.

MESSRS. THOMAS NELSON & SONS of London recently started The War, a threepenny illustrated weekly dealing with the progress of the European war. It is intended to give a weekly summary of events together with as many pictures as can possibly be obtained to illustrate the happenings in the war districts of the Continent of Europe. The London Times, also, is publishing a pictorial history of the war in sevenpenny weekly parts.

It is an axiom among business men that the third year of trade is the most critical. The late Samuel Wilson, Esq., of London, England, no doubt had this fact in mind when he originated the important bequest which bears his name, which provides for the loaning of sums ranging from £100 to £300 ($500 to $1,500) to young men who have carried on business for one year and not more than three years in the city of London or within five miles thereof. The loans are granted for five years upon unquestionable personal security being provided.

The booktrade of the Russian city of Kiev is developing at a tremendous rate. A few years ago Kiev stood twelfth on the list of book-producing cities of Russia. It is now the fourth and is only surpassed by St. Petersburg, Moscow, and Warsaw. Recent statistics show that in 1911 Kiev produced 1,643 works in 4,820,137 copies, having a total value of 1,974,129 rubles. Unfortunately the quality of books produced in Kiev has not kept pace with the quantity. The majority of publishers seem to regard books merely as commercial articles and we are told that almost every volume is marred by numerous typographical and like errors.

THE STATUS of book importation from Germany is clearly summarized in a letter received by this office from Ludwig Rosenthal's Antiquariat in Munich. It says: "Owing to the war it is not allowed in Germany that we correspond in any language but German. Also no packages whatever will be sent for the present to foreign countries, including England and America. Books and engravings up to 75 cm. in length and 45 cm. in width must now be sent as printed matter." The reports from English houses are, however, somewhat more encouraging. The mail service between England and the United States is practically normal, and little difficulty is being had with shipments.

AUGUST SCHERL, the well-known Berlin newspaper publisher, has retired from business, leaving the many enterprises he has built up to the care of others. Mr. Scherl was the first German newspaper publisher to introduce American methods of illustration, and also of "yellow" journalism, into the German newspaper world. His Local-Anzeiger became the great popular cheap daily, and a number of other papers had to follow in his lead to hold their readers. The illustrated weekly, Die Woche, also a Scherl innovation, was the first of its kind to appear in Germany. It covers the field of political and personal gossip of the day, brings out photographs of immediate timeliness, in fact, is considered quite American in style and method.

IT WOULD BE WELL for our publishers of Christmas books, particularly juveniles, to turn their attention to the Belgium market (when the present disturbance calms down, that is!). A correspondent writes from Brussels: "There is no special Christmas literature published in Belgium. We are dependent on importations from France, Germany and England, with some from Holland. The small number of juvenile books issued by Belgium publishers are intended principally for wholesale distribution to schools for prizes at the end of the school year. And as the public institutions expect to get these books at a very low price, they are so poorly made in every way that they cannot be taken into consideration at all for the general market."

AN INTERESTING CASE has come up in the German courts recently, and the decision rendered is of importance to authors and publishers generally. A man of some prominence in a provincial city took offence at the use of his surname for one of the chief characters in a play. He brought the matter into the courts, but lost his case. The court ruled that it would hamper a writer greatly if his use of any family name were to be objected to. Names familiar to certain countries or certain neighborhoods gave local color to a story set in that neighborhood, and their use was a "poetic license" which was quite permissible. It could be made the basis of a law suit only when a deliberate intention on the part of the writer to deride the person whose name was used could be proven.

PICK-UPS.

QUESTIONS THAT MAKE BOOKSELLERS SMILE.

Has the Pope written anything since his "Essay on Man"?

Does the "Garden of Allah" treat of vegetables or flowers?

Have you any late books by Dumas?

In what part of the Bible will I find, "He who steals my purse steals trash"?

Does the "Life of Arthur Sullivan" give an account of each of his battles in the prize ring?

I want a nice book for a very little girl. Could you recommend the "Doll's House"?

SAVING THE TIRED BUSINESS MAN.

Now that Wilson has been seen to read Brand Whitlock's book of memoirs and Sam Blythe's novel, "The Price of Place"; now that Roosevelt is starting a run on Captain Scott's diary; now that the Baltimore Evening Sun has announced that its picture of Roosevelt reading Booth Tarkington's "Penrod" caused the Baltimore bookshops to sell out their stocks of that book, the careful student of literary matters may observe that America has entered a glorious new epoch of literary standards.

For a time novels sold because they were "true to a romantic phase of history." Then they sold because the jackets announced either that they were (1) strong and gripping, or (2) sweet and tender, or (3) by Hall Caine. The third epoch in our literary annals began when the sales of a book depended upon the approximation of the girl whose head appeared on the jacket to the standard of beauty set for all time by brewery calendars.

Recently it seemed somewhat as though we were entering upon a new epoch, in which books would sell upon their merits. But fortunately so chaotic a method of judging books, with its inevitable confusion for the tired business man, has been cut short, and we have entered upon the more reasonable method of choosing our books according to the suggestions of the statesmen.

The following is confidently presented as a probable news-dispatch of the future:

"Landing to-day from his journey of exploration to the North Pole, which he finds to be ten degrees farther E. S. E. than the position assigned to it in Dr. Cook's most recent book, 'You're Another' (Snaggs-Babbington Company, New York, $4 net), Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, whose 'Celtic Ceramics' has just been issued by the Muzzy Publishing Company, at $2.50 net, to-day remarked in an exclusive interview given our special representative, J. Wilson Smith (author of 'Rhinoceros Rambles,' published by the London Book Supply House at 7s. 6d.), 'I am glad to be back. Bully! While I have had a pleasant starvation throughout, nothing on it has been of greater pleasure than reading 'Dainty Delilah,' by Mrs. Rhom-mey. It was noticed by the whole crowd gathered at the dock that the Colonel was somewhat thinner than when he left, and that under his arm he carried the following books —.'"—S. L., in Life.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, unspecified wants, repeated matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in AUGUST, 1914

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

Fall Announcements of All Publishers . . .

PUBLISHERS of forthcoming books to be issued during the Fall season of 1914 are reminded that the Fall Announcement Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, to be issued under date of September 26th, is in many respects one of the most important issues of the year. Booksellers, generally, find it invaluable in making up their holiday orders and for descriptive selections for their own catalogues and circulars. Librarians also use it extensively in making up their purchase lists for the new season. Note then:

1

That the dictionary reference list of new books in that issue will be made up as complete as possible from material procurable between now and September 8th. It is therefore very important for all publishers to send to our editorial department at the earliest possible moment complete lists of their fall announcements, giving as much data as practicable.

2

That the number is especially available for advertising, since an advertisement supplements the reference list and keeps the advertiser's descriptive announcements immediately before the buyer during the period he is planning for the new season.

3

The bookseller, naturally, expects to find the leading books featured in the advertising pages, and his judgment is largely influenced by the publisher's confidence in his leaders as shown by his advertisement. The publisher cannot expect the dealer to stock up on books that are apparently not of sufficient importance to be advertised.

Advertising rates same as for regular issues.

The DUKE of OBLIVION

By JOHN REED SCOTT
A - RIPPING - ADVENTURE - ROMANCE

"The unconventional in fiction" is what Mr. Scott stands for to-day to all who read for the enjoyment and thrill of the tale. His new adventure romance will stir the most jaded reader. A yachting party cruising in the Caribbean discover a mysterious island which by an unusual trick of nature has remained hidden behind a bank of fog. They find a lost community whose customs, to say the least, are most unusual. Adventure follows adventure, thrill after thrill, fighting and heroic deeds sufficient to win the hearts of more obdurate maids than the lovely girls of this romance.
